Kia ora Stacey

We do hope our July newsletter finds you well.

As we enter the final year of the Challenge, we have been reflecting on what lies ahead for Ngā Pi Ka Rere. Our priority is to support early career people to grow and flourish, and we recognise that many of you are busy bringing existing work programs to completion.

In the coming year, we are planning several skill-building webinars oriented toward research dissemination. We are also thinking about opportunities to lift early career voices and experiences at Crazy & Ambitious 4 next April. And of course, we have our final round of funding available to support capability development, conferences, and more.

We would love to hear what would be most helpful for you over the coming months. As ever, please don't hesitate to get in touch with us directly if you need extra support.

Nō reira, noho ora mai,

Aisling, Helen and Symon

NPKR funding update

A huge thanks to everyone who has applied for NPKR funding in the past four rounds. We have been blown away by the number and quality of applications.

The final round of funding round closes 30 Sept. Please read the criteria carefully to ensure you are eligible. If your application is urgent, email us directly.
